Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Vishwanthaiah et al. (US 5,955,894).

In figures 1-5, Vishwanthaiah et al. teaches a method or a circuit comprising:
an input/output cell (108 in Fig. 1; see Fig. 2 for detail) includes a first set of transistors (210, 212, 220, 222 in Fig. 2) ; a node (“-” of 408 or “+” of 508 in Figs. 4, 5); a comparator (408 or 508 in Figs. 4, 5); means for adjusting the voltage of the node (transistors 420, 422 in Fig. 4; transistors 520, 522, 524 in Fig. 5); a digital generator (406, 506); means for transmitting (402, 502) the digital signal to the input/output cell to adjust the input/output impedance; and a reference resistor (120 or 122).

As for the recitation, “a digital controller designed as a synthesized core or macro”, it has been held that a recitation with respect to the manner in which a claimed apparatus is intended to be employed does not differentiate the claimed apparatus from a prior art apparatus satisfying the claimed structural limitations. Ex parte Masham, 2 USPQ2d 1647 (1987).

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
